Liquor Control Is Asked

Bill to Bar Sale On Highway Outside City, Town Limits Introduced in House

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Bills to bar the sale of liquor or beer along Missouri's highways outside incorporated cities and towns was introduced in the House of Representatives today.

Offered by Rep. George Boley (D) of Clark County and seven other representatives, they would require such beer or liquor retailers to be located at least a quarter mile from any state primary or secondary road.

Liquor or beer retailers now located on the highways could continue there so long as they didn't let their licenses lapse.

Rep. Leroy Tyus (D) of St. Louis offered a bill he admitted would put a crimp in the work of the biggest city's police gambling squad.

It would bar police from picking up and destroying as contraband pieces of paper with numbers on them—which could include policy gambling slips.

Thus said it would stop these young politicians from taking such pieces of paper away from citizens.

Another bill offered today would let St. Louis municipal courts issue warrants for anyone in Missouri who violated a St. Louis ordinance. The court also could subpoena witnesses from anywhere in the state in such cases.

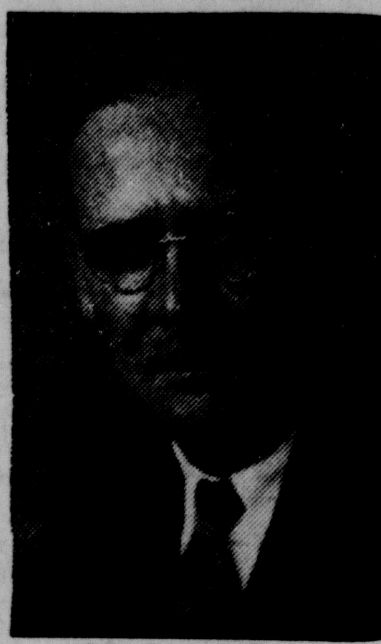

It could mean a parking violator who resides in Missouri could be ordered back to St. Louis to face the violation charge.

Other new bills would:

Exempt physician's prescriptions from the state sales tax.

Bar chiropractors from amputating toes or feet in pursuing their healing art.

In a brief session, the House advanced a bill to let counties decide whether they would set up a system for eradication of Johnson grass—a life and death matter in southeastern Missouri, according to one of the sponsors.

J. E. Hurley, Former Bank Head, Dies

Spent Lifetime Here, Actively Engaged In Business Affairs

John Emmett Hurley, 74, member of one of Sedalia's oldest and best-known families, died Tuesday morning at his home, 1400 West Broadway, after an illness of six months.

Mr. Hurley, president of the Bankers' Guaranty Surety Life Insurance Co. with home offices in Sedalia, spent his entire lifetime here and through the years had been actively engaged in business affairs.

He was born Dec. 11, 1882, in Sedalia, son of the late Edward and Kate Hayes Hurley, his father being many years a contractor and building promoter. Mr. Hurley as a youth attended parochial school and graduated from the old Sedalia High School.

Some years later he accepted a position and became assistant cashier of the Sedalia National Bank and then was on the directorate of the Bankers' Guaranty Surety Life, later becoming its president.

He was a member of Sacred Heart Catholic Church and of the Holy Name Society of that parish. Surviving are: his wife, Mrs. Clara Brock Hurley; a son, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Hurley, Jr., Knoxville, Tenn.; a daughter, Miss Jane Kate Hurley; a granddaughter, Donna Hurley; a brother, W. P. Hurley; and a sister, Mrs. Leo Bloss.

He was preceded in death by a

Will Enforce Law Against Wrong Parking

Parking the wrong way on Sedalia streets is to be stopped.

City ordinances prohibit the parking of vehicles on the wrong side of the street, and it has been called to the attention of the police department to enforce the ordinance.

It has been pointed out by Chief of Police Edgar Neighbors, it is possible that a car parked headed wrong could easily be held responsible for an accident in several ways. First the car being parked headed wrong could confuse an oncoming driver and cause a wreck. Then a driver cutting across the street to park wrongly is in one sense cutting through traffic in two ways, going in to park and coming out to get over to the proper highway lane.

"We hope motor car owners will heed to the warning of parking properly whether it be in midday or midnight. Parking on the wrong side of the street is a violation regardless of what time of day it is done."

"It is not our desire to make arrests of such violators at the present time. However, if the car owners do not correct the situation in a reasonable period, then it will become necessary to make arrests," Chief Neighbors said.

House Gives Amendment Tentative OK

Would Allow Cities To Issue Bonds For Plant Buildings

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The House of Representatives gave tentative approval yesterday to a proposed change in the constitution so Missouri communities can attract industry.

If passed by both houses and approved by the voters it would permit cities to issue bonds for financing construction of industrial plant facilities. With the approval of the state division of resources and development, the cities then could lease the plants to industries, providing work for local labor.

A companion measure, a bill to put the plan into immediate operation if the constitutional change is adopted, was scheduled for debate today.

Also advanced yesterday was another suggested constitutional change, to let non-lawyers run for election as probate or magistrate court judges in third and fourth class counties. It would fill a void in some counties where lawyers have refused to run for the offices.

Last night the Appropriations Committee heard initial arguments for a $75½ million allotment to the state's public schools and administration of the department of education. No immediate action was taken on the fund measure which the commissioner of education, Hubert Wheeler, described as pared to the minimum.

Will Soon Nominate Short As Assistant Secretary of Defense

WASHINGTON (AP) — It was authoritatively reported today that President Eisenhower will soon nominate Dewey Short, former representative from Missouri, to be an assistant Secretary of Defense.

Short, a Republican, served continuously in Congress from 1935 through last year, when he was defeated for re-election. He also served one previous term, 1929-31.

He was chairman of the armed services committee in the Republican controlled 82nd Congress, 1950-51, and subsequently senior Republican member.

Steel Union Leaders Face First Dispute

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Members of the United Steelworkers elect a president today. For the first time in the union's 20-year history, the leadership is challenged.

The issue: dues. Running against President David J. McDonald is a Pittsburgh district steelworker opposed to a hike in dues from $3 to $5 monthly. He is Donald C. Rarick, 37, who works at the nearby Irvin works of U. S. Steel Corp.

USW members also are voting for other top officers, including district directors. In only a few instances are there any opponents for the slate led by McDonald, who succeeded to the presidency after the death in 1952 of Philip Murray.

Howard R. Hague of Pittsburgh has no opposition for his job as vice president.

However, Secretary-Treasurer I. W. Abel of Pittsburgh is opposed by William Klug of Milwaukee, Wis. Klug is a member of Rarick's "Dues Protest Committee."

The committee was formed after a USW convention last fall hiked the dues. Rarick claimed there was no roll call vote. McDonald said the vote was fair and the raise stood.

The same convention hiked McDonald's pay $10,000 a year to its present level of $50,000. Salaries of the vice president and secretary-treasurer went from $25,000 to $35,000 annually.

Rarick says he wants those salary increases rescinded, along with lowering the dues.

Rarick has campaigned throughout the country. He has claimed he was offered as much as $250,000 and a "good job" with the union if he withdrew.

Rarick never identified who reportedly made him the money offer but he said, on several occasions, that McDonald offered him a good job.

McCloskey Will Direct Seal Drive

Heading the 1957 Easter Seal appeal in Pettis County will be John C. McCloskey. The campaign will open on March 15 with the nationwide mailing of traditional Easter Seals.

This year, McCloskey said, the Easter Seal has taken on a New Look, combining two sizes of seals and a narrow, page-wide sticker strip for car bumpers. The smiling lad who features this strip should not only cheer the man in the car behind you, but also make him aware of the "rules of the road".

McCloskey expressed the hope that no crippled child in the county would go unnoticed because of an unopened letter.

Assisting McCloskey in the time-consuming task of preparing the Easter Seal letters for mailing will be his Easter Seal committee. On the basis of the number actually needing help, the goal for Pettis County is $4,000.00. It will require the thoughtful consideration of everyone in the County to accomplish this.

Presented to Israel

US Seeks Quick Reply To Compromise Offer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States sought today a quick answer from Israel to an American compromise proposal for breaking the deadlock over withdrawal of remaining Israeli troops from Egypt.

The plan was presented to Israeli Ambassador Abba Eban yesterday by Secretary of State Dulles, reportedly with a request for a prompt reply which could come today or tomorrow.

The compromise would provide for an immediate United States declaration of support for free navigation of the Gulf of Aqaba by Israeli and all other ships, and Nations action to secure Israel against any future Egyptian attack from the Gaza Strip.

Israel had announced it would not withdraw from the two areas until it had assurances that (1) Egypt would not block Israeli ships from using the Gulf of Aqaba avenue to the Red Sea and (2) there would be no more Egyptian raids on Israel from the Gaza Strip.

The United States reportedly feels there is no prospect of getting such commitments from either Egypt or the United Nations.

The alternative to Israeli agreement to a compromise plan is regarded here as being showdown over Arab-Asian demands for U.N. sanctions against Israel. Debate Israeli troops occupied the Gaza Strip and the Sharm el Sheikh re-

Foreign Minister Shepilov Speaks Before Parliament

MOSCOW (AP) — Foreign Minister Dmitri Shepilov today proposed a mutual hands-off program in the Middle East, provided the Western Big Three abandons its military bases.

Shepilov told the Supreme Soviet, Russia's Parliament, that transmitted such a six-point proposal in notes handed last night to the ambassadors of the United States, Britain and France.

He said in effect that the Soviet Union is ready to stop sending arms to the Middle East if the Western powers will do likewise.

He said the most urgent Middle East question now was "the complete withdrawal of Israeli troops from Egyptian territory." He said his government also supports Egypt's "just demand for full compensation of the damage caused" by the British-French-Israeli invasion of Egypt.

Shepilov also lined his government up again with Cairo's demand that Egypt alone control and operate the Suez Canal. He said "law and justice are wholly on Egypt's side."

Shepilov said this six-point proposal had been made to the United States, Britain and France:

1. The maintenance of peace in the Near and Middle East through settling disputed questions exclusively by peaceful means by negotiations.

2. Noninterference in the internal affairs of the Near and Middle East; respect of the sovereignty and independence of these countries.

3. Renounce any attempts to include these countries in military blocs with the participation of the great powers (a direct slap at the Western-sponsored Baghdad Pact but not at the Arab League alliance which Egypt has been promoting).

4. The liquidation of the foreign bases and the withdrawal of foreign troops from the territories of the countries of the Near and Middle East.

5. The mutual renunciation of the supply of arms to countries of the Near and Middle East.

6. Cooperation toward the economic development of the countries of the Near and Middle East without making any political, military or other conditions whatsoever incompatible with the dignity and sovereignty of these countries.

These six points appeared to represent the Kremlin's answer to President Eisenhower's doctrine to stabilize the Middle East.

Eisenhower offered military and economic assistance against Communist aggression, if requested, to any country in the strategic oil-rich area.

Sends Message To Mississippi Valley Meeting

ST. LOUIS (AP) — President Eisenhower said in a message to the Mississippi Valley Assn. last night that drought relief afforded by the release of stored water in the Tennessee and Mississippi valleys serves to underline the need for continuing the development of water resources.

The President's telegram was read to 900 persons at a banquet session of the annual convention of the 23-state organization.

"The drought-stricken Southwest and Great Plains areas emphasize the importance of our national water resources and the necessity of continuing development programs," the President's message said.

"In the Mississippi Valley it is encouraging to see how foresighted projects on the upstream tributaries, particularly the Missouri and Tennessee, have helped maintain navigation levels and protected the New Orleans water system."

"This further proof of the interdependence of all parts of our country and the need for intensified cooperative effort to assure the maximum use and benefit of our water resources."

Rep. Bolling (D-Mo) told the convention today the Mississippi Valley area is doing little better than holding its own in industrial expansion compared with the rest of the country.

"The Mississippi Basin is our greatest manufacturing, commercial, agricultural and mining center," he declared in a prepared speech, "but there is some evidence that the present is not as bright as it could be."

Some sections of the valley have progressed less quickly than others, Bolling said, adding:

"In our thinking and planning we must not think so much of the Ohio or the Missouri or the Arkansas as of the Greater Mississippi Valley—the one big basin..."

Yesterday, Marvin Marsh, president of the MVA, said the association should "continue vigorously to champion a completion of all water and conservation projects and flood control projects in the valley..."

Deluxe Sandwich Loaf this New, Easy Holsum Way

Suggested by Betty Baker, Home Economist, American Research Kitchen

A loaf of fresh Holsum Bread from your grocer's can take 75% of the work out of making Party Sandwich Loaf—those frosted, four-layer delights! Here's the new Holsum method—and your enchanted guests will never guess your work-saving secret.

Instead of buying uncut bread and slicing it the long way, then spreading and stacking the big, fragile slices—just out the crusts off 8 slices of Holsum Bread; make two stacks of "four-decker" sandwiches (using a different filling for each layer), put the two stacks together, side-by-side, and "frost" with an icing made of a package of cream cheese, mixed with 1 tsp. catsup, 1/2 tsp. onion juice and 1/4 tsp. Worcestershire sauce. Decorate with olives, pimento, chopped parsley or sieved egg yolk. You'll never have a neater, more elegant sandwich loaf—and it will be doubly delicious because of the tender goodness of Holsum Bread.

Lincoln's Preparation..

While decades and centuries recede, facts and fables about great characters in history never quite cease to be a source of continued research and comment.

This is particularly so with Abraham Lincoln, statesman-politician during the era of struggle between the States. With all the mass of intimate material available about this man and the times in which he lived, many contradictions continue to arise—some meant to tarnish or debunk his illustrious status, others to gild what already is gold.

Viewed objectively no harm can come of these observations because it is too well established Lincoln truly belongs to the ages, and is not vulnerable to the shifting loves and hates of those who knew him and recorded their opinions for posterity.

Some have placed the story about Lincoln's Gettysburg address in the realm of myths—the one that he wrote the address on wrapping paper with a borrowed pencil stub while on a train from Washington; another that it was not composed until he reached Gettysburg. Now it is said that careful research imposes the opinion that at least three government officials read the preliminary draft at Washington with corrections noted on the battlefield copy.

No matter when or how the address was written, all who read the Gettysburg Address will agree to its profundity. That this masterpiece may not have been extemporaneous oratory only strengthens, rather than vitiates, its vitality.

In exchange for ecstatic myths about the Lincoln's Gettysburg speech being extemporaneous we would rather choose to believe it was given devoted time and care.

Any endeavor worthy of becoming a masterpiece must be energized by preparation. This premise has a corollary in a quotation by Confucius:

"In all things, success depends upon previous preparation, and without such preparation there is sure to be failure."

For all young people entering upon life's scene of professional and business activity the above maxim has potent recommendation. And it might be supplemented by one of Abraham Lincoln's own:

"I don't know what my grandfather was; I am much more concerned to know what his grandson will be."

Little Prince One Who Scores Triumph

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—Diplomatic observers, looking over the entire calling list of Arab visitors here during the past two weeks, chalk up a plus mark for Mr. Dulles's efforts to woo the Far East.

Charles Malik, the Christian foreign minister of Lebanon, Abdul Ilah, the pro-British crown prince of Iraq, and King Saud, the wavering, onetime friend of Colonel Nasser, all were part of an attempt to box in the army colonel in Egypt whom Dulles once picked as America's best friend, but who has turned out to be Russia's best friend.

Biggest diplomatic victory was scored by none of the above, but by little Prince Mashur, 3½-year-old son of King Saud. The generous outpouring of gifts and good will to the little prince warmed the heart of his father more than all the regal receptions and state dinner parties given in his honor, elegant as these were.

The fact that the American people spontaneously contributed all sorts of presents and deluged the little boy with get-well messages, touched the King's heart and convinced him that the American people had no designs on his country. His staff purchased two extra trunks to carry the load of copybooks, miniature racing cars, and other knickknacks the American public sent to the hospital.

In addition to this, the King was delighted with the U.S.A.—ranging from his talks with Ike to Gali-Gali, the magician, who spoke in Arabic at the Arabian-American Oil Co. dinner given him at the Mayflower Hotel, to the fact that John Foster Dulles gave him practically all of what he wanted from the United States.

The King's Brother

Dulles's real problem, however, is going to be after King Saud returns home. The King's brother, now acting as lord chamberlain in his absence, is intensely anti-western and pro-Nasser. In addition, Nasser has managed to infiltrate the Saudi Arabian army with pro-Egyptian officers, thanks to the Egyptian military mission stationed in Saudi Arabia.

This is why Dulles's policy of sending more arms to Saudi Arabia is so risky. Chances are they will eventually fall into the hands of the pro-Nasser clique inside the Saudi Arabian army which has the support of the King's brother.

The King himself went home glowing with praise for the U.S.A. However, he is almost blind, reads only that which his advisers give him, and naturally is subject to all sorts of pressures. In the past, he advanced oil royalties to help Nasser buy arms from Russia, also advanced money to Nasser when the Egyptian budget was low, and just recently, while en route to Washington, stopped off in Cairo where he promised money to balance the Jordanian budget.

Today the King's own budget is low, and he is asking more aid from the U.S.A. This puts Mr. Dulles in somewhat the position of siphoning money from American taxpayers, indirectly, to pay for Russian arms sent to Egypt.

Friendly Crown Prince

The crown prince of Iraq, who some day will rule his oil-rich nation, was completely friendly to the U.S.A. before he arrived. He and his government have been hoping that the

Guest Editorial—

CAPE GIRARDEAU MISSOURIAN: The Stock Market. New York Stock Market for a protracted period reflected economic conditions in America accurately. Perhaps it still does. But it must not be overlooked that it is now hedged about with rules, regulations and controls.

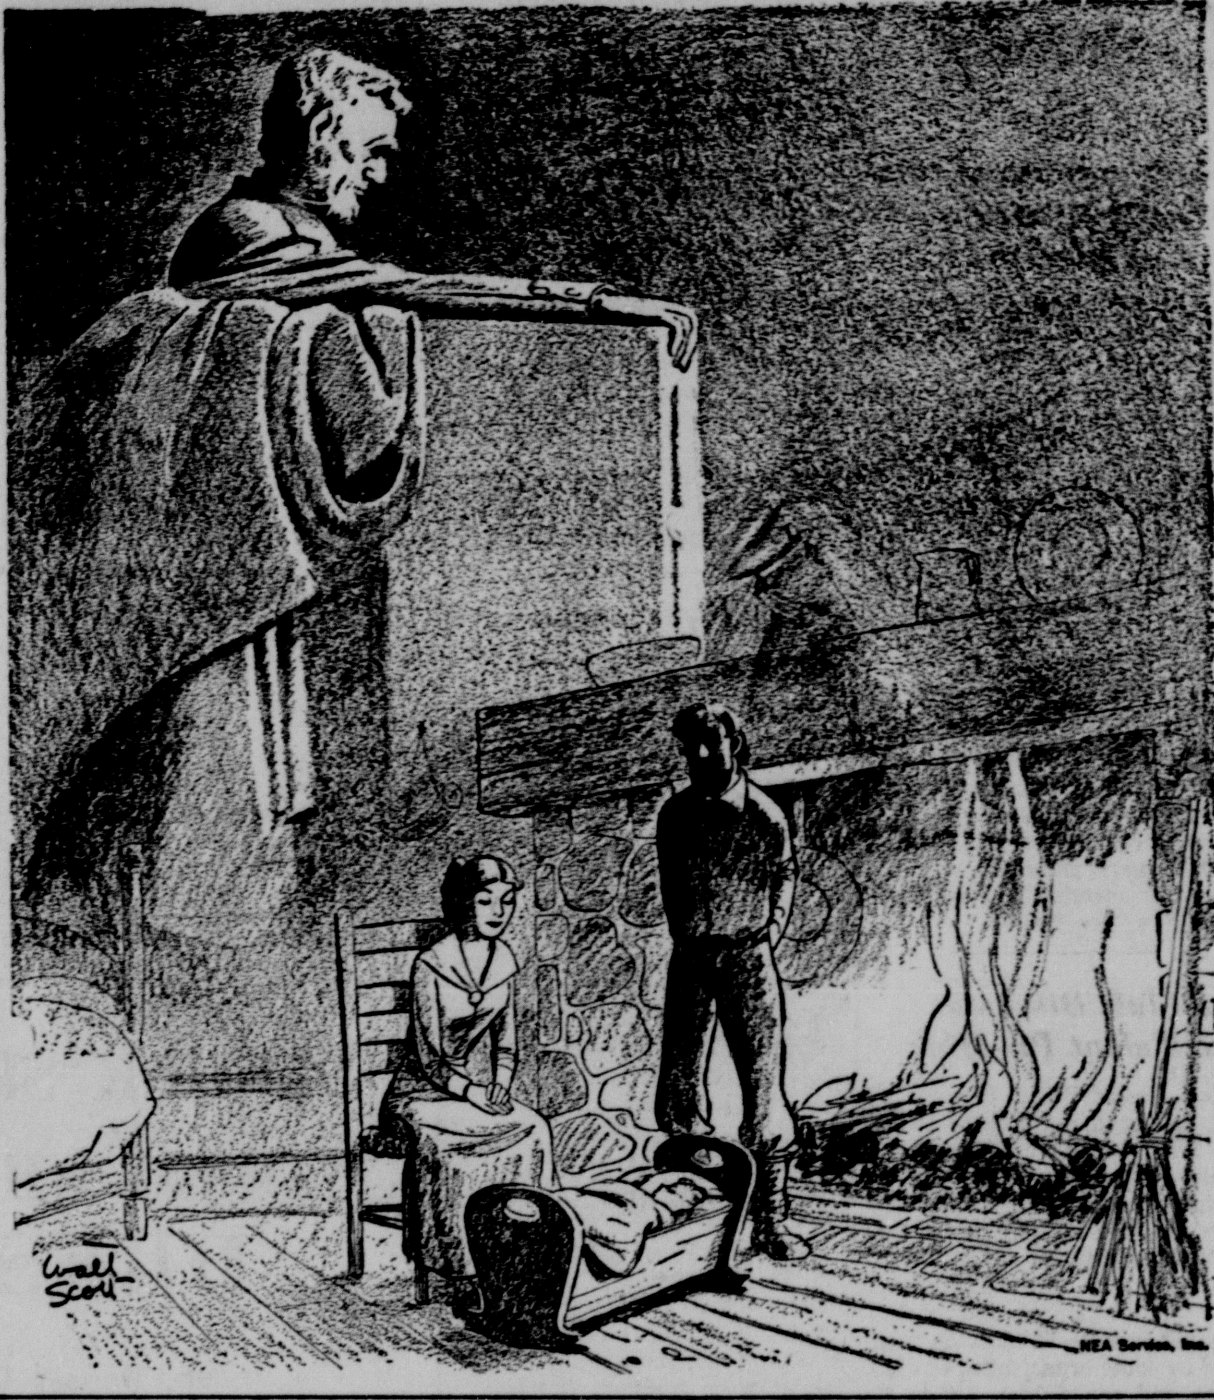

For months the market has been unable to establish much of a trend. It could have been a terrific bull market. Some corporations whose shares are listed on the exchange have been paying record dividends. Corporate profits as a whole have been satisfactory.

But the stock market seems to have been under the deadening influence of uncertainty. So it has continued to drift.

If corporations are able to maintain their high earnings and dividends, the stock market eventually will break out of its lethargy and begin to climb. But if earnings and dividends decline, a bear market may result.

But one thing is certain: There will be no "black Friday" on the stock market. Stocks are already too low to drop precipitately.

Just Where Is Nasser Taking Egypt?

WASHINGTON (AP) — There is still a mystery about Egyptian President Nasser, despite all that's been written about him and all he himself has said: Just where is he taking Egypt?

Canceled Tour Will Cost Frank Sinatra

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The tour he didn't make will cost Frank Sinatra "in excess of $75,000."

That's the estimate of promoter Lee Gordon, who booked Sinatra and a troupe of 12 entertainers and musicians for what was to be a three-week tour of Australia and the Philippine Islands.

Gordon said that he and the singer's business manager, Hank Sanicola, reached an agreement whereby Sinatra will pay for all expenses incurred.

He said Sinatra has agreed to make the tour later this year, possibly in October. Sinatra cancelled his scheduled appearance after a dispute in Honolulu over airline tickets to Australia.

munist or is leading his country toward communism. Egypt has some restrictions on Communist activity, such as propaganda. But he is getting Egypt deeper in debt to the Communists outside Egypt.

His new laws "Egyptianizing" various foreign businesses in Egypt discourage foreign investments in Egypt and may so change the country's economy that no Western government would give Egypt economic aid or loans. This in turn would make Egypt even more dependent on the Communist world for help.

This picture might seem different if Nasser at the same time were setting up social programs for Egypt's 23 million people, most of them poor.

But the stories coming out of Egypt do not tell of any real, long-range thinking on Nasser's part to lift Egyptians out of their economic wretchedness.

He keeps them stirred up with hatred for the West. That can keep them distracted for only a while from the main issues of their lives. What are they going to get out of Nasser's regime?

Because of a lack of social programs or any discernible clear policy for his people — besides waving the Egyptian flag—Nasser looks more like an opportunist playing it by ear than a man with vision or programs.

Nasser has kept the Egyptians moving from excitement to sensation and back again with his tough policy all around, his seizure of the Suez Canal, and the attack on Egypt which stemmed from his conduct.

If he is just an opportunist, always looking for the main chance, he will probably be forced out of the picture, either by those who are around him or by a revolt, perhaps led from the left, by the Egyptian people.

Since the British-French attack on Egypt — and the United Nations' stern reaction against the attackers — Nasser has sat tight.

If this country has had any serious dealings with him since then, they have not been made public. He's letting the United States and the United Nations use up their energy trying to get the Israelis out of Egypt.

When that problem is solved, or partly solved, attention will revert back to Nasser. So far he's been playing only one game: tough-guy obstinacy. He can't play it forever.

The United States, so far as can be seen, is trying to line up his Arab neighbors in friendly relations with this country. It will mean money for them from U.S. foreign aid funds.

In time, if Nasser continues his obstinate but otherwise unpredictable course, he may find himself isolated in his own Arab world.

He still has some time on his side. But it can't last indefinitely.

HIGHLIGHTS AND SIDELIGHTS FROM YOUR STATE CAPITOL

Kill "Open Range" Bill

Rep. Charles James (D-Dunklin county) said "sympathy, not common sense" was responsible for action by the house roads and highways committee which killed his bill to abolish the open range in Missouri.

The committee voted 39 to four to kill the open range bill. The action took place within 15 minutes after a two hour hearing attended by some 300 residents of south Missouri counties which still permit open range grazing of livestock.

James said many committee members told him they were for his bill but voted against it because of their sympathy for the south Missourians who travelled to Jefferson City through a heavy snow storm to oppose the bill to banish the open range.

Pay Increase for Prosecutors

Prosecuting attorneys in third and fourth class counties would receive an immediate pay raise through legislation introduced by Rep. Charles Foley (D-Pemiscot county).

Foley's proposal would increase pay of third class county prosecutors $1200 a year and fourth class county prosecutors $600 a year. The prosecuting attorneys would be given the additional task of advising school boards on legal matters in order to qualify for the pay raise during their present terms of office.

County treasurers in third and fourth class counties would receive pay raises of $800 and $600 a year respectively under legislation recently approved by the house. The bill, sponsored by Rep. Aaron Lee Bachler (D-Barry county), would impose the duty of turning over school funds to the county board of education once a month.

Would Lower Standards for Newspapers

A house bill to lower the requirements for legal newspapers in Missouri recently received approval of the house judiciary committee despite strenuous opposition from the Missouri Press Association.

The bill would cut the present three year publication requirement to one year. It is sponsored by Rep. Luther Arnold (R-Stone county) and Rep. Ealum Bruffett (R-Ozark county). Rep. Bruffett was opposed in the General Election by the publisher of the only paper in his county.

Bill Bray, general manager for MPA, said the requirement that a newspaper be published for three years before it can accept legal advertising was set up to prevent the establishment of newspapers only for the purpose of gaining on local publications, and making political footballs of them at the expense of the public.

Bray said the three year publishing requirement insured some degree of permanence to legal newspapers which is necessary in probate instances and other matters of litigation as a protection to citizens. In the opinion of the journalists to drop the three year requirement is like dropping the Bar examination for lawyers or the internship for doctors since the newspaper is a quasi public servant.

The bill barely received the approval of the house judiciary committee. It received 12 yes votes—only one over the required majority.

Dust Bowl Headed Their Way, Home Builders Think

By PETER EDSON

NEA Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON — The pitch of the home building industry is that it is facing a disaster just as real as the drought in the southwest, and that the government should ride to the rescue.

The drying up of the land was what ruined crops in the dust bowl. The drying up of credit is said to be ruining the housing business, and the government's tight money policy is held responsible.

Federal Reserve Board Chairman William McC. Martin Jr., disagrees with this, but George S. Goodyear of Charlotte, N. C., president of the National Assn. of Home Builders, says these things should be done:

1. Raise the interest rate on Veterans Administration GI home building loans from 4½ to 5 per cent, which has been the Federal Housing Administration rate since Dec. 4.

2. Authorize the U. S. Treasury to buy 250 million dollars' more stock in the Federal National Mortgage Assn. This would permit FNMA to put out 10 times that amount of money, or 2.5 billion dollars in additional FHA building loans.

3. Authorize the treasury to create another special two-billion-dollar assistance fund in FNMA, to be used only for financing construction of low cost homes, mortgaged for $12,500 or less.

4. Since the Veterans Administration GI home loan program is due to expire in 1958, transfer it to FHA with the provision that low cost home mortgages can be made available with down payments of $400 to $500.

There will be plenty of objection to this program on the ground that it is inflationary. The U. S. Treasury would have to raise the four billion dollars of additional capital either by borrowing it — which would increase the national debt — or by increasing taxes.

The home building industry replies that people need homes just as much as they need superhighways and more education. The government is preparing to put billions of dollars into road and school construction programs. Why not into home building?

Furthermore, argues Goodyear, if inflation is so great a threat to the country, why doesn't the Federal Reserve Board put credit controls on everything?

If World War II's Regulation W is too tough for now, why not use the Korean period's voluntary credit controls on time purchases?

Then raise taxes to soak up excess purchasing power and put a freeze on wages at the same time.

"We have wage inflation now," "Building costs were up 3 per cent in 1955 and 6 per cent in 1956."

He blames building trade wage raises for most of the increase. He says building costs can't come down till wage rates level off and the home building industry is given an even break for the available supply of lending money.

The way the N.A.H.B. president sizes up the situation, the home building industry is the only business in the country on which there are credit controls of any kind. They are applied through the FHA and VA ceilings on home mortgage interest rates.

He does not advocate that the government housing interest rates be raised to 6 per cent, nor that the ceiling be taken off completely. To do this would merely cause competitive borrowers to raise their interest rates to 7 per cent and the situation would be just what it is now, only worse.

With a 5 per cent interest rate on government — guaranteed loans, the housing industry thinks it can get by. Also, 5 per cent is as much as homeowners ought to pay.

But the way the situation appears to the home builders, is that the big borrowers have all the advantage. Building and loan associations would rather make one $20,000 mortgage loan than two for $10,000 apiece.

Banks would rather loan a million dollars for one new office building or a new industrial plant than take the risk on 100 home building loans of $10,000 each. That's why there's a heavy industry boom today while home building slumps.

Furthermore, since most corporations are in the 52 per cent income tax bracket and can deduct their interest payments, a 6 per cent loan really only costs a big business 3 per cent.

These are just a few of the reasons why the home building industry — which claims it is the second largest business in the country if you include all its suppliers — is crying for help.

Thinking It Over

By Robert L. Dieffenbacher, D. D.

Waiting seems endless when one has an appointment and the person for whom one is waiting does not appear. Minutes seem like hours when trains or planes are late. Delays on street corners are irritating. Whenever we have to wait for others we become impatient.

We could be doing other things. We could be accomplishing something constructive instead of wasting time.

Even when we have a place to sit down and do the work that we could be doing, which is waiting, we cannot seem to do it. Worry and irritation command our attention or disorganize our thinking.

People are so inconsistent that they are less concerned with the irritation they cause than the irritation they feel. We need to apply the "Golden Rule" in keeping appointments and in our relationship with God Himself.

Lincoln Carried Confederate Bill

By Joseph A. Dear

WASHINGTON — Lincoln was carrying a five dollar Confederate bill the night he was shot.

The contents of his pockets—nine articles in all — are held in a custodial account by the Library of Congress. The collection may never be displayed, though, and its very existence is supposed to be secret.

That's what the original donor, now deceased, stipulated. The donor was a Lincoln heir, but the Library of Congress won't say which heir. Other descendants of the Great Emancipator apparently will not authorize the collection to be put on display.

Some of the articles in the collection are: a multi-blade jack-knife with Lincoln's name sewn across one corner, which to this day has never been unfolded. Glasses. A letter. A pendant, containing what seems to be a flake of gold. And a wallet with several compartments.

The Confederate bill, and several newspaper clippings, were in the wallet. One clipping, from a Dixie paper, related the unpopularity of conscription with some Southerners. Another clipping, from a British journal, told about a speech in Parliament.

Garden Club 3, met at the home of Mrs. Mary Ellis, 908 Crescent Drive, with Mrs. E. J. Pflughoeft assisting hostess. There were 16 members present. They enjoyed a dessert luncheon.

Mrs. B. Y. Edelen, president, presided at the business meeting. The various committees reported. The social chairman, Mrs. Wilford Acker, announced the March meeting will be at the First Christian Church and also that the spring Flower Show will be held on Saturday, May 25, at the Smith-Cotton Cafeteria.

Announcement was made that the Garden Center at the library has several new books for use, some purchased by the Garden Club and some donated. Among them are: "Contemporary Arrangements," "Fruit and Vegetable Arrangements," "Western Flower Arrangements" and a book on "Landscaping."

Mrs. C. L. Carter gave the program on "Birds and Bird's Needs". Several members showed exhibits of nests, figurines and arrangements using birds. Miss Helen Baple played a number of records of bird calls, music and bird songs and songs of birds of southern woods and gardens. Many were very familiar in this locality. The mocking bird, the winner when whose song is very rapid, an octave above the highest note on the piano and eight notes per second; the laughing loon, hence the saying, "Crazy as a loon" which is not very musical but a very sharp bird; the pied bill greed, meadow lark, and blackbird. She also showed ed pictures of birds from Wyoming and an odd nest taken from the desert cacti, also a bird feeder made by pouring suet into a large pine cone and sprinkling it with bird seed.

Mrs. H. C. Sammons showed a birds nest of the chipping sparrow made with horse hair with a tiny egg in the nest. Also she showed a bird waterer using a Pyrex dish over on a frame over a short candle for cold days. Mrs. Carter exhibited a humming bird's nest that came from near their cabin and told of many experiences watching different birds. She suggested everyone to plant berry trees and shrubs to attract the birds and especially to provide food and water in the winter. She stated that July is the best month to set a bird. There are 57 varieties of birds, she said, that feed on the mulberry tree and 84 on the wild cherry. Some trees and shrubs that were recommended were hackberry, persimmons, dogwood, all fruit trees, sumac, bush honeysuckle, and many vines and berry junipers. She said that there were 1,200 species of birds in the United States and Missouri had 383 kinds and ranks fifth. There seems to be a general interest in birds everywhere, she said and they have been an inspiration for many poets and musicians.

Garden Club No. 4, met at the home of Mrs. Del Heckart, 903 South Ohio, with Mrs. J. C. Saunders assisting. Present were 26 members, and two guests, Mrs. Mary Eckhoff and Mrs. Heckart's mother, Mrs. Crockett.

Mrs. Ida Harriman reported that the Flower Show will be held at the Smith-Cotton cafeteria on May 25.

Mrs. Roy Kirchhofer won first prize and Mrs. Del Heckart second in the exhibits for the day.

Mrs. Foster Scotten talked on birds and told of the different kinds and their characteristics.

Mrs. Brink urged members to try out new seeds, prune dead shrubs and to check their bulbs.

An entertaining game was played when seven members dressed to represent plants, trees or shrubs and the rest of the members guessed what each represented. Mrs. J. F. Skolaut was winner in the game and was presented with a sprinkling can.

Mrs. Brink concluded the meeting with the thought that good intentions be resolved into good execution.

Garden Club No. 5 met with Mrs. P. L. Strole, with Mrs. E. W. Kettleson as assistant hostess. Sixteen members and two guests, Mrs. C. Edmondson and Mrs. James Harvey, were served a dessert luncheon.

Governor Blair Lifts Censorship on News From Missouri Prison

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—A 20-months-old policy of strict censorship over news from the Missouri penitentiary here was lifted yesterday by Gov. James T. Blair Jr.

The policy was imposed by State Penal Director James D. Carter in July, 1955, on orders of former Gov. Phil M. Donnelly. The order was a result of a series of bloody riots at the prison late in 1954.

Blair told a news conference that, "I have instructed Col. Carter to give out all the news about the prison, good, bad or indifferent."

"There will be no cover up of any news in any department during my administration," he said. "If there is anything wrong in a department, then it is up to us to correct it rather than keeping it from the public."

Newsman renewed their protests of the censorship after a disturbance at the prison last Thursday was kept secret until reporters heard rumors of the trouble.

Actress Says Drama School Isn't So New

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (U)—The so-called new schools of acting aren't so new after all, says Shirley Booth, who ought to know.

Shirley has won just about all the acting awards in sight, including the Oscar for "Come Back, Little Sheba" and every honor possible for her stage work. She's making her third movie, "Hot Spell," and I asked her what she thought of the Actor's Studio and other schools of drama.

"I think they're fine," she said. "Anything that helps you understand yourself and study other people makes for better acting. I'm all for it."

"But it's not new. Natural acting stems back to Edwin Booth, who originated it. I'm not saying that because I saw him or because he's a relative—he isn't. But he was the one who departed from the bravura type of acting that had been done for hundreds of years and started being more natural."

She hastened to add that being natural doesn't mean being real. "Real people would be too dull," she explained. "You've got to be a little bigger than life, to project in order to create interest."

"The proof of that is British actors. They are the most natural in the world; no one seems more natural than an Englishman playing a drawing room scene. But when you see them offstage, you realize how much they're acting."

This shapes up as Shirley's biggest year, until recently she was playing "Desk Set" in San Francisco. After "Hot Spell," she'll do Perle Mesta's story on Playhouse 90, her first big TV effort. Then she'll return to "Desk Set" for a couple of months in Chicago, do "The Matchmaker" for films and open on Broadway this fall in "Isobel." Some schedule!

Senator Says UN Should Invoke Curb On Russian Veto
WASHINGTON (U)—Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.) says the United Nations cannot assume "moral leadership" of the world unless the U.N. Security Council limits Russia's veto.

The Senate Republican leader told a Georgetown University group last night he believes the veto could be curbed if the council would invoke a U.N. Charter provision which states "a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting" in the council.

The Russian veto must be limited "to those matters which impinge on its sovereignty and not those where the Soviet Union is violating the sovereignty of others," he added.

Knowland said if the Soviets objected to invoking the rule of abstention, the chairman could overrule it and other council members then could sustain the chairman's ruling.

If the Russians walked out, "so be it," he said. He added the U.N. would be better off without the Soviets as members.

Brief Applications But Lots of Them
NEW PORT, Ky. (U)—A Louisville man not only sends in the briefest possible application for a job—but he apparently does a lot of travelling too.

William Wurth sent a postcard applying for the job of city manager here when the post became vacant.

Later he sent a formal application and followed that with another postcard—this one from Kingsport, Tenn.

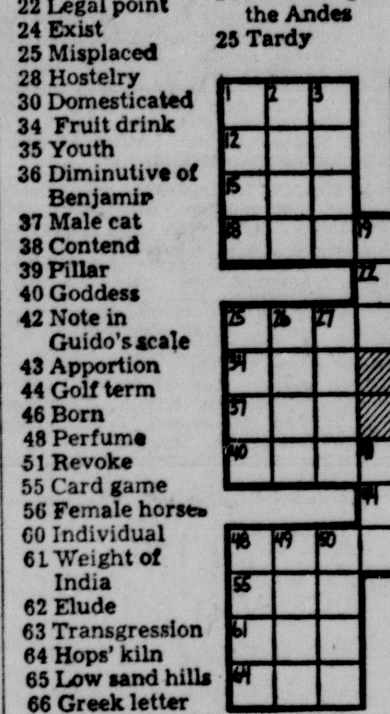

City commissioners heard from him again—by telegram from Washington reminding he's still interested.

CAREER OPPORTUNITY
for ambitious, reliable men who are interested in a permanent position with opportunity for advancement. $6,000 or more per year with bonus paid monthly. Persons applying must have automobile, high school education or equivalent, and be able to start immediately. Sedalians Are on Panels For Community Workshop

Two Sedalians have been named as panel members for the Community Development Workshop to be held in Warrensburg on Feb. 20. Vernon Rodick, president of National Engineering and Manufacturing Co., and Jack Faber, executive vice-president of the Chamber of Commerce, are both on panels for the workshop.

The Warrensburg clinic will use the unique "revolving panel" method, rotating the panels among the groups of city civic leaders. Kinne said. Such a system will enlarge the opportunity of handling individual problems, the director added.

The Feb. 20 workshop is the first of five clinics to be held at the five state colleges in Missouri. Registrations are being handled by the Warrensburg Chamber of Commerce through local chambers. The one-day affair is jointly sponsored by the college and the Division of Resources and Development, with the cooperation of the Missouri State Chamber of Commerce.

Planning and zoning panelists are Vernon F. Rodick, president, National Engineering and Manufacturing Co., Sedalia; Philip E. Geissal, chief planning engineer, City of Kansas City; E. C. L. Wagner, chairman, planning and zoning commission, Jefferson City. John Thompson, executive vice-president of the Missouri State Chamber of Commerce, will moderate.

The Municipal Services panel will be moderated by Bruce J. Carl, executive director of the Missouri Municipal League, and will include Lewis S. Payton, district public health engineer, Missouri Division of Health; Hubert Hinton, superintendent of municipal utilities, Marshall; and Homer Dennis, traffic control section, Missouri State Highway Commission.

The four members of the Cultural and Educational Facilities panel are Bill Lyon, director of parks and recreation, Marshall; John Hudson, director of adult education, Clinton High School; Mrs. James Houx, chairman, Johnson County Mobile Library drive; and G. V. Jones, past president, Sedalia Community Concerts. Dr. LeRoy Harper, chairman, health and physical education, Central Missouri State College, Warrensburg, has been selected as moderator.

History Gives Basis for Three Popular Shows

By CHARLES MERCER
NEW YORK (U)—While history is not always a popular school subject, it is providing the background for three television programs which are very popular with the young in heart of all ages.

They are Buccaneers (CBS-TV, Saturday nights), Robin Hood (CBS-TV, Monday nights) and Sir Lancelot (NBC-TV, Monday nights). All are filmed in England by Sapphire Films, Inc.

Why are the programs produced in England?

In the words of Peggy Phillips, story editor: "You can't build an English castle in an American back yard and make it look like anything but a thing built in an American back yard. It's preferable to rent a genuine castle."

It is interesting, however, that a majority of the scripts are now being written by Americans. Miss Phillips, an American, is here now collecting writers. The producers feel that American writers have a better understanding of American story interests.

"The hardest thing for a British writer to do," says Miss Phillips, "is to get that opening hook that snarls and holds an audience. British writers are strong on character and historical relationships and atmosphere while Americans concentrate more on conflicts between characters. The British pace is more leisurely because the whole method of their craft is cumulative."

The producers plan two new programs. One, tentatively entitled The Highwayman series, will concern one of the first police detection agencies in history, the famous Bow Street Runners of the 18th century. Another, to be filmed in Italy, will be based on Florence during the Renaissance.

Quits Network TV for Local Show at Home

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—In a world of frogs and big and small puddles, Don Russell believes there is much to be said for small puddles. He speaks specifically of Stamford, Conn., for which he probably is the most vociferous spokesman.

He recalls the time a couple of years ago when he believed he was going home to Stamford to die after a New York doctor told him he had heart trouble.

Russell appeared to be another casualty of the frenetic world of New York television and radio. When Du Mont was a television network instead of a New York local station, Russell was doing 14 shows a week.

Tension grew, he recalls. Things began to irritate him unreasonably. One day he blacked out in New York. A doctor told him that he had severe heart trouble and that he should go home to Stamford to rest.

After lying around his Stamford home awhile, he was told by a local physician that his heart was fine and that all he needed was a hobby.

Looking at his car port, he decided to wall it in. When it was finished, he realized it would make a fine broadcasting studio. Julian Schwartz, manager of Stamford radio station WSTC, agreed to let him do an hour daily broadcast from his home. A group of local merchants began sponsoring him.

In his daily broadcast, Russell plays the organ, sings, plays recordings — and talks. He talks about Stamford, its interests and its problems.

The mayor drops in regularly to discuss civic problems on the air. The governor of Connecticut arrived unheralded one day. Russell currently has 56 advertisers—54 of them national—sponsoring his program. He is a healthy and a happy man.

Admitting that he could be lured back to network television, he said, "But if I got a contract, there would have to be a clause permitting me to keep on doing my Stamford broadcast."

Association Announces List Of Notable Books in 1956

"Notable Books of 1956", a list of 42 titles, has been announced by the American Library Association's Notable Books Council. About two-thirds of these notable books are available at the Sedalia Public Library.

These books were chosen for their contribution to understanding among individuals and groups, their originality or fine writing, their appeal to the general reader seeking to broaden and deepen his understanding of himself, his world, and his society.

The following Notable Books of 1956 will be found at the Library: "My Lord, What a Morning," Marian Anderson. The famous contralto, tells of her long struggle to become a concert singer. A genuine expression of a great artist and public figure.

"Helen Keller," by Van Wyck Brooks. With rare grace and affection, an old friend of Helen Keller pays a poignant tribute to her remarkable spiritual courage.

"Through These Men," John Mason Brown. Tempered observation on contemporary politics and political personalities.

"This Hallowed Ground," Bruce Catton. The Civil War from the Northern side; superb writing, skillful choice of relevant details and a wonderful narrative sweep. "The Blessings of Liberty," Zechariah Chafee. A challenging and timely discussion of the meaning and development of traditional American freedoms.

"A History of the English-Speaking Peoples" Vol. 1, the Birth of Britain; Vol. 2, The New World, Winston Churchill. A memorable history, and an enduring record of our common race, illuminated by flashes of genius, character and style.

"Eisenhower: The Inside Story," Robert J. Donovan. A crisp and revealing examination of behind-the-scenes doings during the first three years of Eisenhower's presidency. "The Age of Fighting Sail," Cecil S. Forester. Masterly account of great sea fights by a first-rate storyteller turned historian.

"A Single Pebble," John R. Hersey. Human strength and tragedy, revealed through a boatman's struggle in the terrifying gorges of the Yangtze. A short novel of classic simplicity and distinction.

"Naught for Your Comfort," Trevor Huddleston. An absorbing and disturbing book about the degrading effects of South Africa's rigid segregation policy, as observed by an Anglican monk and citizen.

"The Nun's Story," by Kathryn C. Hulme. The struggle of a soul caught in a spiritual crisis behind the walls of a cloister. A profound experience, written with delicacy and sincerity.

"Profiles in Courage," John F. Kennedy. A remarkable book about American statesmen who stood behind their principles even at the cost of their political lives.

"The Secret of the Hittites," K. W. Marek (C. W. Cream, pseud.). Archaeology's exciting rediscovery of the powerful Hittite empire, lost to history for 3,000 years.

"Arms and Men," Walter Millis. American military history and its influence on American life and politics.

"The Power Elite," C. Wright Mills. A provocative analysis of the decision makers in American life.

"Jawaharlal Nehru," by Francis R. Moraes. A major study of the Prime Minister by one of India's leading journalists.

"The Last Hurrah," Edwin O'Connor. A charming political novel dominates this wise and witty novel of an Irish-American mayoralty campaign.

"The Singing Wilderness," Sigurd F. Olson. The land northwest of Lake Superior, one of the few remaining wilderness areas, pictured with simple beauty.

"The Pitiful and the Proud," Carl T. Rowan. Asia's many deep-seated problems seen through the eyes of an articulate member of one of America's minorities.

"The Public Arts," Gilbert Selles. The far-reaching influence of TV, radio and movies on our habits and attitudes.

"Three Saints and a Sinner," Louise Hall Tharp. Little Julia Ward Howe, her sisters and her brother, pictures against a rich background of 19th century Boston and New York.

"A Historian's Approach to Religion," Arnold Toynbee. A history of the world's religions and the relation of that history to the spiritual dilemma of our time.

"Segregation: The Inner Conflict of the South," Robert Penn Warren. Honest picture of the general climate of opinion on segregation, as reported by a Southern Pulitzer-Prize novelist.

Russian Hopes In Near East Are Outlined

The eyes of Russia now are on the Near East, said Dr. R. Leslie Anders, assistant professor at Central Missouri State College, Warrensburg, in his talk Thursday evening before members of the Business and Professional Women's Club dinner meeting at Bothwell Hotel.

Dr. Anders reminded his audience that this was no different than it had been since the ninth and tenth centuries, with the conflict of the Greek orthodox and the Christian faiths. The grand duke of Moscow took some of the Byzantine Empire and declared there would be a third Rome, meaning Moscow.

Throughout the early history of Russia, it tried to get Constantinople and clear the Black Sea. Catherine the Great was determined to drive the Turks off the Black Sea and the Crimean peninsula. In 1774 she did get them off the Black Sea. In 1801 her grandson, Alexander I, began his reign, but he found Napoleon hard to handle. In 1804 he succeeded in getting England to put a fleet there, with Alexander I as the brains. Among the things he asked for was Constantinople as a base but the British disagreed. Dr. Anders said, and the sky fell in. In 1806 he met with Napoleon and wanted Constantinople and Bulgaria. Napoleon said no, but through agreement with Napoleon he received Finland.

In the 1820's, under Nicholas I, there was war with Turkey, and it well might have terminated in the third Rome, but by this time India was getting important to England. Dr. Anders said, and England sought to protect this interest. As a result, there came the Crimean War, a useless war the speaker explained which began with a squabble between the Roman Catholics and the Greek Catholics, aroused a growing uneasiness with the English, which exploded into war, and Alexander II had to pick up the pieces with a little piece of the Danube for his troubles.

Trouble still persisted with Russia, always ambitious and looking toward the Near East. In World War I, Russia went stumbling and staggering into the war, although while there were agreements on this or that, there was not a word about Constantinople. The Russian Army sagged and in 1918 they couldn't see what they were fighting for. In reaction, Russia was in a state of isolation in the 1920's.

In 1940 Russia had a new friend, Hitler, in Germany. Russia still wanted Constantinople and the Balkans but Hitler said no. In 1945 Stalin denounced the pacts with Turkey.

At present, they are threatening the Turks, not only for freedom of navigation but because Russia is still interested in the Near East. It is backing the Arabs not because it is interested in them but because there are 60 million Arabs and two-thirds of the world's oil there.

Dr. Anders stated he did not believe World War III would start, because of this, in the near future. It is his belief that since Russia has been eating, living and thinking the Near East for nearly two centuries that there is nothing immediate about the Russian thirst. If it has waited this long, it wouldn't mind waiting another 200 years or so to get what it wants.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Ann Brown, chairman of the international relations committee.

Regional Library Notes

Story of News Coverage Is High on Popularity List

The new books at your Regional Library this week are as far apart as the well-fed bridegroom to high fidelity.

High on the popularity list is the story of news coverage over the last century, "It Seems Like Yesterday," by the dean himself.

Members of her committee were Mrs. Minnie Allcorn, Mrs. May Arnold, Mrs. Lena Boothe, Mrs. Opal Baum, Mrs. Ruth Brereton, Mrs. Blanche Hall, Mrs. Rose Hausman, Mrs. Marian Knight, Mrs. Ruth Riley, Mrs. Marie Spendiff, Mrs. Maxine Swafford and Mrs. Stella Heckart.

Special music was by Mrs. Edith Donath, violinist, and Miss Doris Stott, pianist, who played before the meeting and on the program during the meeting.

The meeting was conducted by Mrs. Anna Bagby, president, with invocation by Mrs. Sophia Crosslin. Miss Eugenia Arnold led the singing.

Guests introduced were Mrs. Ted Etheridge, Mrs. Peggie Homan, Miss Jane Younger, Miss Ann Sullivan, Kansas City, Mrs. Phil Burford, Mrs. Burleigh Jeffries, and the Rev. R. C. Williamson.

New members introduced were Mrs. Hannah Anderson, Miss Virginia Green, Miss Ann Sagar, Mrs. A. J. Gregory and Mrs. Dorothy Johnson.

Mrs. Bagby announced that from the three Hungarian Relief booths in downtown stores on Jan. 5 and Jan. 12, a sum of $53 was realized and had been turned over to Miss Hazel Palmer, president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs. Miss Palmer, who attended at the meeting, stated she had already sent the money in direct to the international organization because she wanted them to see the check from her own home town. She explained that this money would be used for the benefit of Business and Professional Women Hungarian refugees.

Those who helped in the booths downtown were Mrs. Ray Lippard, Mrs. Emory Bowman, Mrs. Frieda Nelson, Mrs. Elmer Adams, Mrs. R. C. Williamson, Mrs. Maria Layne, Miss Louise Koepfer, Mrs. Mabel Menefee, Miss Bessie Perkins, Mrs. Josephine Cross, Mrs. Anne Hamilton, Mrs. A. F. Scott, and Mrs. Evelyn Maddi.

The state convention will be held in Kansas City on April 26-28. Mrs. John W. Welch has been appointed as convention chairman for the local club.

An arrangement of flowers in red, white and blue shades formed the centerpiece on the speakers table and on either side were candles holding red, white and blue candles. In the center of the other tables were globes of the world and the programs had the flags of various nations.
